

Sister Maureen Finn — 50 Years

“My family and Catholic education at Holy Trinity Parish in Webster marked my early years and planted my desire to serve God by serving others,” said Sister Maureen Finn.

“I discovered teaching was not my way of serving after two years at Mother of Sorrows and two years at Bishop Hogan Junior High School. I spent eight very happy years in Selma, Alabama at Queen of Peace Parish which had been recently formed from two racially separate parishes. The challenges of race, cultural diversity and poverty in Selma, and action on behalf of justice, prepared me well for pastoral work in Brazil, where I have been for the past 33 years.

“I’ve discovered that it’s not what I do but the relationships that I form with people that leaves a lasting mark in me and in others. Contributing as part of our formation team for new members also reinforced my vocation as a Sister of Saint Joseph and challenged me constantly to seek to be and do more than I thought possible.”
