

Sister Hilary Hanly

Sister Hilary Hanly was an R.N. She worked in Selma, Alabama, at St. Joseph's Hospital in Elmira, St. Joseph's Villa, and at the Motherhouse infirmary. "Along the way I found a saying by St. Frances Cabrini that has held great meaning for me through the years – The place you are in needs you," said Sister during her 60th Jubilee celebration in 2011.

Sister Hilary later went on to work at Cobblestone Springs, an interdenominational retreat/renewal Center in Dundee, NY. Of her time there, she said: "Mennonite Farms surround the property, and horse and buggies regularly pass by the house. I feel something good is happening in the world and I am a small part of it."

When summing up her years as a woman religious, Sister Hilary said she was proud to be a Sister of Saint Joseph. "Our work is touching people all over the USA. Love is reaching out and returning tenfold."

She concluded, "All is a gift from God."
